

12 April 2024 at the White Horse Book Shop, Marlborough

More in the series of

So That's How it's Done

Ink and Wash in a Loose Style with Colin Palmer

This workshop has been developed to help students broaden their skills to enable them to paint buildings and trees using pen and wash. We will be painting the image shown here.

During the day the tutor will show, through demonstrations the stages of completing this picture.

With friendly help and precise guidance from an experienced and passionate tutor, Colin will pass on many tips and tricks that he has perfected during his career as an artist. Individual attention will be given to each student to maximise their learning experience.

This workshop will be of special interest to those with an interest in architectural illustration and who enjoy painting houses or buildings in a loose style.

Students will be supplied with all materials including Saunders Waterford paper, paints, quality brushes, waterproof pens etc.

Tutor Background

Colin Palmer is a professional artist and watercolour teacher who works from his studio in Marlborough.

He produces artists impressions of new house builds for architects, property developers and designers and sells original paintings and fine art limited edition prints in galleries and shops as well as direct from his studio. Colin runs regular workshops throughout the year, demonstrates to art societies and teaches at Marlborough College Summer School.

More information and to view Colin's work please visit his website

<https://www.colinpalmer-illustration.co.uk/teaching>